| PHYS1403  | Life and Physical Sciences (Core Area 030) | Stars and Galaxies
This course is designed to give an overview of the visible universe. The objective throughout this course is to explain how astronomers know the many curious things they have learned about our universe. It brings the universe alive; in a sense; by showing the drama of the birth; evolution; and death of stars. What is the universe? Did the universe have a beginning? Will the universe last forever? These cosmological questions are answered in a qualitative way. The chances of life elsewhere in the universe; and how we might know about it are discussed. Planetarium and Observatory are used extensively. Prerequisites: None. | This course consists of: 8 Lesson Assignments, 8 Lab Worksheets, 5 Quizzes, 2 Exams | A new 12-week term starts every Monday
Select: Start/End Date
